Norris Warns Labor; Assaults 'Racketeering'

Upholds Rights of Unions, But Says Congress Will Take "Drastic Action" Unless They "Clean House"

(By The Associated Press.)
Prospective opening of the Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant—largest industrial unit in the world—brightened the labor-defense picture today, but Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), still viewed the general problem seriously enough to warn that "drastic action" will come out of congress unless labor cleans house.

Norris, co-author, with Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York of the Norris-La Guardia act limiting the right of the federal courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes, said in an open letter to his constituents that some local unions had resorted to "intimidation" in getting fees out of job applicants.

While the veteran senator decried "labor racketeering," he nevertheless said labor was being unfairly accused in connection with defense industry strikes.

Ford Reopens Monday
Settlement of the Ford strike—the great plant was expected to open again Monday—was described by Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan as "an historic step in establishing industrial peace in our country."

About 200,000 workers in the Ford and allied plants have been idle for 11 days and work on $155,000,000 in defense contracts has been bogged down. The union's original demands included recognition of the CIO-UAW union, a 10-cent hourly wage rise and abolition of what they termed a "company spy system."

The plan for agreement calls for the return of employees to their jobs without discrimination, the re-establishment of grievance procedure and cooperation of both sides in holding an NLRB election for collective bargaining representation. The labor board agreed to postpone a hearing set for Monday on a complaint filed against Ford by the CIO.

G-M Vote Asked
While peace is in sight for Ford, the United Automobile Workers international union asked locals for authority to take a strike vote of 175,000 members in 76 General Motors plants.

Walter P. Reuther, head of the GM section of the union, said the strike action would not affect

GRAND JURY PLANS GAMBLING PROBE

Indictments Asked In At Least Three Cases, Sheriff Says

LISBON, April 12.—An investigation into gambling operations in Columbiana is expected as an important phase of work for the April term grand jury which convenes Monday morning. Sheriff George Hayes and Prosecutor Frank W. Springer will present evidence of gambling in at least three instances. Prosecutor Springer stated an early report can be expected from the grand jury, which, in addition to making the gambling probe, will question approximately 40 witnesses in nine other criminal matters.

Foremost among the latter cases is a charge of armed robbery, filed against four Leetonia youths, Mike Romaine, Casper Romaine, Robert Brookes and Claudius Neider, in connection with the holdup of the "Y" service station, two miles west of Lisbon on Route 50, last Jan. 13. It is charged $100 in money and two valuable rings were taken, the latter being recovered after the arrest of the quartet.

Other charges to be investigated include one of forgery against Fred Ellis of Salem; reckless driving against J. R. Baughman, and a breaking and entering of an inhabited dwelling by William Reynolds of East Liverpool. The list also includes two charges of assault and battery filed against Charles Cannell of East Palestine by John and Irene Bosco, and three charges against Mearl Hawkins of East Liverpool, for breaking and entering two schools and a church in East Liverpool with intent to steal.

4 Top-Ranking N. B. O. P. Officers Are Re-elected

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 12.—Four top officers of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters will be unopposed at the biennial runoff election in May, it was announced today when returns from the March primary election were tabulated.

Assured of another tenure are three East Liverpool men, James M. Duffy, president; Frank Hull, second president, and John D. McGillivray, secretary-treasurer, and E. L. Wheatley of Trenton, N. J., first vice president.

Six vice presidents will be chosen. The candidates include five incumbents, Charles Zimmer and George H. Newbon of Trenton; George Turner of East Liverpool; Charles F. Jordan of Sebring and Joshua Chadwick of Newell, W. Va.

Plan Communion Rites

The Rumanian Orthodox St. John's Evangelistic church will hold communion service at 4:30 a. m. Sunday in the Church of Our Saviour. The service will be conducted by Rev. Traian Vintila, served in the Rumanian church one week later than most churches will be observed Sunday, April 20, at a service at 4:30 a. m. in the Church of Our Saviour. A choir will sing special Easter music.

Find Body In River

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 12.—The fully dressed body of an unidentified man, about 55, apparently a victim of drowning, was found on Babbs Island in the Ohio river here Friday by two boys. Coroner Arnold W. Devon said the body probably was washed on to the island by a recent river rise.

Message Of Resurrection To Be Told In Music And Sermon At Sunday Services

Special Rituals Throughout the Day, From 6 A. M. to Evening, Will Mark Triumphal Day

Carrying greater significance, perhaps, than for many years, Easter services commemorating the resurrection of Christ, after three days in the tomb, will be held in churches throughout the city.

Among the first services of the day will be the customary 6 o'clock mass at St. Paul's Catholic church and, a half-hour later, the sunrise service at 6:30 in the Baptist church, at which boys and girls of the Junior choir, pictured above, will tell the Easter story in music.

Other masses at St. Paul's are scheduled at 7:30, 9 and 10:30, the last being a solemn high mass. School children will sing at 9 o'clock and the adults' choir at the 10:30 mass.

The Baptist children's group will open the service there with an anthem, "Alleluia" (Bixby), and this will be followed by "Ring, Merry Bells" (Bliss). Other selections include "There Is a Green Hill" (Bixby) and "Angels, Roll the Rock Away" (Newton).

Pastor To Speak
At the sunrise service, Rev. S. Talmage Magann, the pastor, will preach on "The Glory of the Dawn."

Twenty-seven candidates will be baptized. On Feb. 1, Baptists formulated plans for a special offering of 5,000 dimes which will be brought in at the sunrise service.

The Baptists' Sunday program also includes the Easter morning worship at 10:45 and, instead of the regular evening service, a vesper hour featuring a program of Easter music at 4 p. m.

The Methodist church will present a musical program during the worship hour. The junior and senior choirs will sing selections, the two groups combining their voices in the opening anthem.

The Salem commandery of Knights Templar will attend this service.

The program follows: Call to worship; processional hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today."

Organ invocation, "Easter Morning on Mt. Rubidoux" (H. B. Gaul). Anthem, "Joy Dawns Again on Easter Day" (Blitgood), by junior and senior choirs.

Responsive reading for Easter day, "Gloria Patri" (Meineke).

Affirmation of faith. Anthem, "The Heavens Are Telling," from "The Creation" (Haydn) by senior choir.

Scripture lesson.

Prayer, with response, "The Strife Is Over" (Palestrina).

Offertory anthem, "Above the Hills of Time," by junior choir.

Hymn, "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain" (St. Kevin).

Sermon by Rev. Carl Asmus. Prayer and benediction.

Recessional hymn, "Crown Him with Many Crowns" (Diademata).

Organ postlude, "Toccata On an Easter Hymn" (Lignwood Farm).

Homage S. Taylor is organist and director.

Reception For Members

COUNTY RECEIVES 87 NEW CITIZENS

LISBON, April 12.—Columbiana County today has 87 new American citizens, out of 105 aliens, the largest single class ever to apply for naturalization in Columbiana.

Out of the group applying, only two petitions were denied. Seventeen other petitions were continued, one for investigation of an Industrial Workers Organization affiliation and two because of criminal records, while others were either for further study or non appearance.

The examination of the applicants before Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp, was conducted by Divisional Director Charles Garfinkel of the Immigration and Naturalization service, Pittsburgh, assisted by Harry Gould and Sidney Medoff, naturalization examiners.

After all successful applicants had been admitted into citizenship by Judge Sharp, the oath of allegiance was administered to the group by Clerk of Courts John W. Coleman. Adding to the impressiveness of the patriotic service was the advancing of the colors by the color guard of the American Legion, group singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," led by Clark Coleman, the presentation of small American flags to the class by members of the Legion, and the presentation of small copies of the Constitution of the United States by the East Liverpool chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Concluding the program, the class was welcomed into citizenship by Judge William M. Carter of Warren, of the court of appeals, who compared the various forms of other government to the freedom and privileges enjoyed in the United States. He stated those who had lived under other forms of government should really appreciate the privilege of citizenship more than those who are born Americans.

Condemning Communism and other isms, Judge Carter told the class, "you now owe a duty to this country in combatting these from within as well as outer forces working against our government."

RAF Bombers Hammer Nazis In Yugoslavia

German High Command Claims Big Gains; Yugoslav Premier Reported On Way To Moscow Parley

(By The Associated Press)

Allied and German armies met today in a mighty battle in the Phlorina area of Greece, 16 miles south of the Bitolj (Monastir) gap. The British radio reported, while in northern Yugoslavia, Nazi units, according to the German high command, were advancing from several directions on Belgrade.

Details of the battle in the rugged Greek mountains were lacking. The Germans asserted that Yugoslav resistance in Croatia had collapsed and that "the Serbian northern army is dissolving."

British bombers are said to have pounded Germans in southern Yugoslavia, and northern Greece before the land forces joined battle.

There was a diplomatic development of interest: A German radio broadcast heard in Bern, Switzerland, said Yugoslavia's premier, Gen. Dusan Simovic, had left on a mission, presumably for Moscow. It was recalled that only Thursday, Red Star, organ of the Soviet Army, said the Soviet-Yugoslavia friendship pact was "all the more valuable under the new conditions because the Soviet union always fulfills its international pledges."

Nazis Claim Gains

The German high command's war bulletin said Nazi troops had occupied Varazdin, a Yugoslav town on the Hungarian border, and that a Serb brigade had surrendered to the Germans. Northwest of Zagreb the Germans claimed to have reached the Sava river.

The battle in the Phlorina area between the German and both flanks of the British-Greek defense line was forecast last night.

Theologos Nicoloudis, Greek press minister, told the residents of German occupied Macedonia and Thrace in a broadcast last night that:

"Within a few hours there will start — it has not started already—one of the most stubborn and best battles in history, between the Greek, and English on one hand and the Germans on the other. We shall win the battle."

Yugoslavia, meanwhile, was cut off entirely from Greece as German units driving westward established contact with Italian forces from Albania north of Lake Ochrida, Yugoslavia.

Berlin took the view that the juncture of the Axis armies sealed the fate of Yugoslav divisions still fighting in central Serbia, and Adolf Hitler wired hearty greetings to Benito Mussolini.

Not Discouraged
General Dusan Simovic, Yugoslav premier, broadcast a statement, however, that "Germany's early successes cannot discourage us."

"Our troops," he said, "are concentrating on main battle lines to check the enemy's advance."

In the air war, the Luftwaffe again blasted at British coastal regions, concentrating especially, the Germans said, on Portsmouth. The British acknowledged much damage in west England and said casualties were rather heavy there, but reported destruction of two more German raiders, bringing to 40 the number shot down since Monday.

On the Africa front, the British said their troops had made "contact" with the Italo-German units marching on Tobruk in Libya.

Victorious troops of the East African campaign were said to be pouring through Egypt to get in line for battle with the Germans and Italians, who in three weeks have covered some 400 miles across North Africa.

GREENLAND'S ICY MOUNTAINS

Between taking over the defense of Greenland, which has been announced as a national policy and legalized by means of a treaty with Denmark, the owner, and the actual business of establishing an outpost there may lie a momentous passage in American history.

The airplane has made Greenland, hitherto so little wanted that tiny Denmark could hold it, a vital point. The United States government has been informed that Germany may be interested in it. German planes based on the southern tip of Greenland would complete air harassment of Britain-bound shipping over the whole span of the great circle route. Planes based on Norway and the French coast already are contributing heavily to the mounting success of Germany's counter-blockade of the United Kingdom.

The United States government says it is interested in Greenland as a defense base. That seems to mean that it is interested only in keeping Greenland from being used as a point of invasion for this continent. A more credible explanation is provided, however, by President Roosevelt's request for authority to take over immobilized vessels lying in United States waters—because this country's "ultimate defense will be rendered futile" unless supplies can be moved from American ports.

If Greenland would be useful to Germany for maintaining its counter-blockade of Great Britain, it would be useful to the United States for resisting the counter-blockade. That seems a good enough reason for establishing a base on Greenland. Whether the attempt will precipitate open warfare with Germany is a decision for Adolf Hitler and his advisers to make. The United States is going to take something into protective custody for a change.

THE PLAN OF THE WAR

There remains one nation theoretically capable of halting Germany's drive to Suez through the Middle East. Barring upsets, such as a crushing defeat inflicted on Germany by Great Britain and its scattered allies in Greece, the next move to the southeast will be at the expense of the Turks. Franz von Papen, who has spent a lifetime learning how to soften governments for the various purposes of his superiors in Berlin, has been frantically busy in Turkey. The fruits of his labor shortly will be revealed.

If Nazi pressure is turned on Turkey, the general shape of Germany's plan then will be plainly visible. Thwarted in its hope of bringing the war to a climax by invading Great Britain, Germany has struck an indirect blow at Britain in southeastern Europe, with the ultimate objective of controlling the Suez canal. Simultaneously, another drive on the same objective will be made in Africa. A third blow at Britain's seapower may be the long-awaited attack on Gibraltar through Spain. With both Suez and Gibraltar in German hands, the British navy would be driven from the Mediterranean; it would be a near-fatal blow.

Besides Turkey, the only force even theoretically capable of preventing fulfillment of the German plan, is the British expeditionary force, divided between Libya and Greece—and reported to be preparing to make contact with the Germans in Greece.

A MATTER OF OPINION

A tempest in a book has been blown up by C. G. Grey, co-editor of Jane's All The World's Aircraft, authoritative British publication, for saying the "United States have decided to support the war financially to the last Englishman." Copies of the edition containing the statement are being called in, and the government is in a dither for fear Americans will be offended.

There needn't be much fear on that score. If Americans were sensitive to slighting remarks from abroad, they never would have recovered from the shower of insults that rewarded them for their part in World War I. They realize fully that it must annoy Englishmen to think of Americans believing this is somehow their war, yet not fighting in it. When it bothers them, though, they reflect that if the tables were reversed their highly practical cousins probably wouldn't even be willing to make a financial sacrifice to help pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, April 13

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of some very active and important happenings of a public, community or philanthropic nature. All church and charitable activities may be under high stimuli, but these may suffer minor delays and peculiar perplexities, especially in relation to writings or contracts. It would be well to shun extravagance, excess and possibly litigation.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of some progress and success in public affairs, or in group or community objectives, although this advantage may have delays, disappointments and the menace of duplicity, litigation and loss. Extravagance and indulgence may be regrettable. Sign papers cautiously.

A child born on this day may be active, ambitious and devoted to the public welfare and collective prosperity, although it may have fluctuating personal fortunes.

For Monday, April 14

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of unusual liveliness and activity, although the sudden precipitation of events may call for the utmost skill and discrimination to prevent, unexpected upheavals and disruptions. Such striking adventures may concern the emotional, romantic or artistic life, which could be thrilling and lucrative if discreetly managed.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of the sudden and unpredictable, with matters moving at thrilling pitch in both private and public affiliations. It is probable that the romantic, emotional or creative faculties are pitched to high tempo and call for much discernment and clever management.

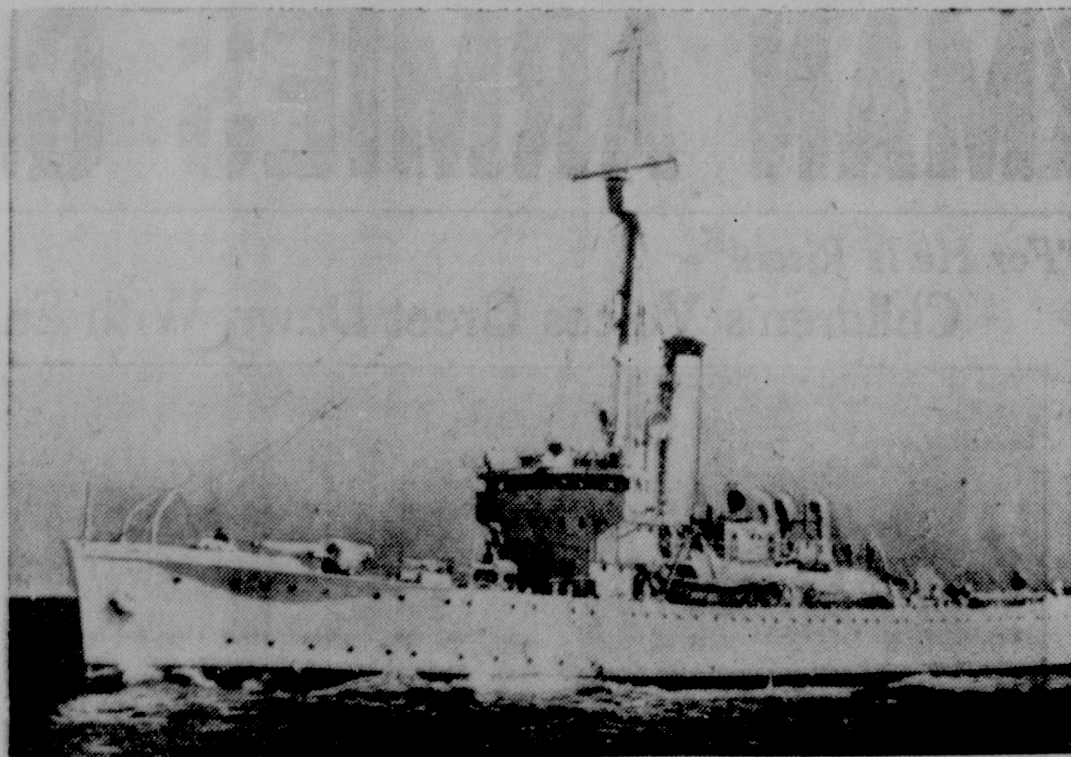

A child born on this day should be talented, public-spirited, have unusual talents and creative ability. A so strange urge for romance and adventure.

A Hoosier has devised a speedier bullet, which should be interesting alike to squirrels, rabbits and speeders.

With a new fishing season imminent, German submarines will ply American waters at their own risk.

Harlan, Ky., is again competing with the war news. Fro mthe casualty list it is hard to tell whether they're having a strike or an election down there.

U. S. S. Chelen, One of Ten Cutters for Great Britain

Among the ten destroyer-sized coast guard cutters President Roosevelt has ordered turned over to the British navy is the U. S. S. Chelen, pictured above. The high speed of these cutters will make them effective in cutting convoy losses in the English channel, say naval experts.

DOCTOR DISCOURSES ON PERSONALITY

Your Glands Have Nothing To Do With It, He Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is the generally accepted belief concerning the location of human personality? Do the endocrine glands still get all the blame? What is ambition, a sense of responsibility, patience, agotism?

Psychologists no longer are inclined to locate these functions or personality properties. The seat of the soul was kicked around in the brain for a while and then from one ductless gland to the other. Now the term is "psychobiology"—the whole mass makes the personality. Your hand and its function, have just as much to do with personality as part of your brain. As you train your hand to do skillful things, the process conditions certain cells in your brain. This is reflected in your pride and the sparkle of your eyes. They all add up to make personality.

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Tuberculosis and Marriage

When is a case of tuberculosis cured enough to get married safely?

The use of the word "cured" as heard in connection with tuberculosis is not now allowed by strict standards. "Apparently cured" is used. This would mean there were no general constitutional symptoms such as fatigue, loss of weight or night sweats present. There should be no fever any time in the twenty-four hours. If any expectoration occurs, the sputum must be found to contain no tuberculosis germs by concentration under the microscope or by animal inoculation.

When no expectoration is present, the stomach should be washed out and the contents examined for tubercle germs, because the patient often unconsciously swallows them. The X-ray should show that the condition is stationary. When these conditions have prevailed for two years, marriage may be allowed. The terms seem harsh, but it should be remembered that tuberculosis is essentially a relapsing disease.

What is the cause of a sensation of warmth and mild pain in the armpits of a middle-aged woman?

These conditions are very common. Technically they are known as "dermatalgia." It is assumed that there is no change in the appearance of the skin.

This is ascribed to a disturbance of the nerves supplying the skin of the part affected; supposedly the nerves of the vegetative nervous system. The pain varies in different cases, sometimes being burning, sometimes the sensation of cold water running over the skin, or the sensation of an electric current. The attacks come on usually at night and usually the patients are women.

The causes are possibly rheumatism, anemia, or vitamin deficiency. Exposure to cold is also to be considered. Treatment consists in the use of any substances which will quiet the nervous system and relieve the local pain and irritation—such as aspirin, salicin, quinine and arsenic. The X-ray has often been used successfully in relieving these conditions.

Very important it is to see that the clothing or bed clothing is not of an irritating character as in some instances the condition seems to be a form of allergy due to sensitiveness to wool or other materials.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. B.:—"Could a pain in the chest that remains for several hours be caused by overwork? Could such a pain cause me to be weak and run down?"

Answer:—Work doesn't cause localized pain, only a general feeling of fatigue. The occurrence of a pain such as you describe suggests heart trouble and means all work should be given up. It also suggests a visit to a doctor.

E. C. M. Vermillion, Ohio:—"What would cause the tongue to crack? My tongue is cracked down the middle and gets red spots with white edges around them."

Answer:—Possibly anemia; sometimes Vitamin B deficiency. The most important indication is for an examination of the blood to see if anemia is present.

L. L.:—"I eat the tea leaves as I drink tea. Some say it is bad for my nerves; some say it does no harm at all. I eat a lot of them."

Answer:—Evidently you know the answer yourself. You just want somebody to tell you this does no harm. You know it does make you nervous and that you eat too many of them.

L. L.:—"Are benzedrine sulphate tablets effective in increasing weight?"

Answer:—No they have no direct action on weight at all. They increase activity and in that way tend indirectly to reduce weight.

RACKETEERS

Editor, The News: Just where is the weak spot in Salem's law enforcement system, so far as the gambling racket is concerned? That is the ever-growing question being asked by various citizens, only some are more blunt and ask: "Who is getting the rakeoff for protection?"

Why were penny cigarette machines ordered removed from places when nickel slot machines and marble boards alongside of them were not molested? Is there less chance for graft in penny machines than those of larger denominations? Owners of slot machines and marble boards can sport around in fine cars, own fine homes, paid for by school kids' nickels and hard-earned wages of men whose families really need their wages for necessities of life.

Human leeches sucking life blood from helpless women and children. Larger cities are cracking down on racketeers, why not Salem?

Do racketeers own the city hall? Or did they just buy a part interest in it?

LABORER.

Raps "Selfishness"

John D. Biggers

Appearing as one of the first witnesses in the house military committee's investigation of the national defense program, John D. Biggers, dollar-a-year production chief for the Office of Production Management, is pictured testifying in Washington. Biggers urged a general awakening to the "serious urgency of our nation's task" as he declared that both industry and labor has acted "selfishly" in some cases. Biggers declared the U. Sunday school 9:45 (St. Luke 24, 13-35). Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

There is something very personal about the message of Easter. It is not an ancient and dusty story that has lost its interest and importance for modern thought. The resurrection of Jesus Christ is of interest and importance to every single individual. It has some relationship to the most important questions that come into the minds of people.

One's life here upon this earth will be different because of Christ's victory over the grave and death. The facing of that experience which we call death will be different because our Savior is the living Christ.

Morning Worship, 11 a. m. Celebration of the Sacrament of Holy Communion. Reception of new members in the church.

There were strong forces to keep the crucified Christ in the tomb and dead forever. Yet they were not strong enough to stop and hinder the will and purpose of God. "In Him was life and the life was the light of man." The resurrection of Christ was part of the divine plan. Christ died that He might pay the price of sin and set all mankind free from the bondage of evil. On the third day, he became the living Savior and assures victory to all of the believing world. "Christ is risen. Alleluia!"

Risen our victorious Head! Sing His praises! Alleluia!

Christ is risen from the dead! A sunrise service will be held at 6:30 a. m. in charge of the Luther League and Trinity Lutheran young people. An Easter breakfast will be held at 7:30. Mrs. G. D. Keister is the speaker. Topic: "Victory."

Christian Science Lists Sunday Announcements

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kil.), Cleveland, the first and third Sunday of each month at 11 a. m. Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m.

The midweek service will be held the first Wednesday of each month at the church at 8 p. m. The Golden Text is: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalms 27:1).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended" (Isaiah 60:20).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We are sometimes led to believe that darkness as real as light; but Science affirms darkness to be only a mortal sense of the absence of light, at the coming of which darkness loses the appearance of reality. So sin and sorrow, disease and death, are the suppositional absence of Life, God, and free as phantoms of error before truth and love" (p. 215).

This society maintains a reading room at 135 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the services and visit the reading room.

The festival of the Resurrection of the Lord will be observed with an early Easter service at 7 a. m. The pastor's sermon subject is "The Risen Christ." Holy communion will be celebrated in this service. The choir will have special Easter music. Margaret Fronius will sing "Hosanna" by Granier.

The Sunday school meets at 9 a. m.; Lee Schaefer, superintendent. German Easter service with Holy communion at 10 a. m.

Easter 1941

We shall celebrate Easter in a perturbed world which is trying its best with its many-hued and widespread wickedness, its flagrant unbelief, and its frightful materialism, to rob this festival of its true significance. But all the throbbing of the war drums, the reverberation of the tramp of millions of armed men, the selfish plotting of international diplomats, the terrors and uncertainties of a badly muddled labor situation, all the machinations of hell apparently let loose upon our suffering earth, cannot close the open tomb of the risen Christ nor dim the luster of His omnipotent power of His redeeming grace. No power on earth or in hell can take away the glory of His victory, a victory won for us over the foes of our souls. With the world around us cracking to its doom the spiritual values and treasures and certainties which Jesus Christ brought forth for us from the grave assume an ever-growing value and importance. They are the only stable things in life today.

With more than a usual degree of joy and gratitude the children of God will this year assemble around the open tomb, appreciating perhaps as never before the preciousness of the eternal verities which the risen Christ has brought from the grave. We look forward to services of triumphant gladness in our church. Come and worship the risen Lord.

Announcements follow: On Monday at 7:30 p. m. the Luther League will meet in the social rooms of the church. The choir will practice at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

EASTER CHAPEAU IS MOST IMPORTANT OF THE YEAR

An Easter bonnet is an item of apparel that should be considered and purchased with great care. It is the most important hat of the year. It must be smart and becoming, also just right for the rest of your Easter outfit. Madame Nicole designed the little straw turban shown top left above. It is in Mediterranean blue cire petit point straw and is decorated with two white birds with blue-tipped wings, and has a blue veil. Below the turban is a rough straw hat, also designed by Nicole, in a disc styling with white grosgrain loop trim and smart black fishnet veil. A Lily Dache creation, top right, is made of candy pink straw with a wide gathered brim of grosgrain ribbon. Below that is a pompadour Panama evolved by Knox, and is a classic style looking gay and springlike.

MORE PRECIOUS THAN Orchids

The lily, which is the symbol of Easter is a common and inexpensive flower—and yet its glorious symbolism makes it far more precious than the rarest orchid ever grown. The orchid is impressive in its own exotic fashion, but it is without a voice. The Easter lily speaks; if there is one in your home today, look at it again—close. See if its beauty does not move you strangely.

I confess the white blooms fascinate me. The petals so translucent, so emblematic of purity, seem to possess an unearthly perfection. The golden stamens remind me of that precious, golden promise: "Because I live ye shall also."

Truly, the gracious beauty of the Easter lily is a fitting symbol of the risen Christ!

WOTAN'S WEDGE

by FRANCIS GERARD
A PRELUDE TO BLITZKRIEG

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

"Faith, I'm thinking it's time I kned the party. No, no, little man, you'll not be after wanting to get yourself hurt."

It was the man in the corner. O'Byrne who had strolled casually across the room and quickly helped himself to the revolver from the holster on Rotz's hip.

"I'll take it kindly of you, Colonel. I'll take it kindly of you, too," he said, smiling. Colonel O'Byrne went on, relieving Colonel Weimar of his automatic which O'Byrne threw to Meredith who caught it.

"I may as well talk normal English now," said O'Byrne without a trace of brogue in his tone. "This is the whole shooting match. I think I have got anyone with you, Sir John?"

McAllister and Company are outside somewhere," replied Meredith. "By the way, I suppose you're Captain Connors?"

The young Irishman nodded. "Of the East, Sir," he grinned.

"Let's of the Leinsters," said O'Byrne. "How nice! We round our party up? No. General, please don't resist. I shouldn't. Carry on, Beef, we're not out of the wood yet. There's quite a few Nazis outside. Connors would you break a window and fire a couple of shots; then we may enjoy a jolly rescue scene."

Five minutes later, the farm was in the hands of the men. At the last moment, Lieutenant Rotz had misbehaved. Beef had the intense satisfaction of kicking his knee-cap with a bullet. That must have been very, very painful!

The night was dark. There was little wind and no moon now. The perspective of the submarine broke surface and moved slowly turning its head in an extraordinarily life-like way from side to side as it went through the water. Fifteen feet below its commander among the perspective slowly round. There was not a light to be seen. He barked an order. The ship began to surface.

Sharp metallic clangs which heralded the opening of the conning-tower hatch were audible in the still night. The commander clambered up onto her deck, the next moment he was shielding his eyes against the blinding glare of two searchlights.

"What ship?" a voice in English belted through a megaphone.

The commander did not reply at once. The unknown vessel lay upon his starboard bow. His mind was made up for him when two more searchlights cut in on his port side. Cursing his hands about his mouth he shouted, "Unterseeboot, LZ3."

"Stand by," he was told. "You are in British territorial waters. I am coming aboard from H. M. S. Harpy."

The two destroyers, which had raced up from Invergordon during the day, lay not three cable lengths on either side of the submarine. Their searchlights maintaining an unwinking glare upon her hull. There was nothing much the German submarine commander could do. And he did nothing much.

Ashore, just off the coast road, a big car was waiting with all its lights extinguished. Two men sat in its tonneau smoking. They were General Prince Max von Wallenfels, chief of the German Military Intelligence, and Colonel Sir Hector McAllister, chief of the combined Intelligence Departments of the Foreign and Colonial Offices.

Von Wallenfels turned slightly to the man at his side and said in English. "It is almost time Sir Hector. May I say how very pleased I am to have made your personal acquaintance."

"The feeling is entirely mutual, General," replied McAllister. "I have known of you for many years now, you know."

"But, of course, it is a sad meeting for me," said Prince Max, his voice expressionless.

"Well," nodded the Scotsman. "It's the luck of the game, General. Very much so in this case."

"True," replied the German. "For without such luck England might be a German colony within a few months."

"It is possible," admitted Sir Hector, "but not probable." He paused a moment and then went on. "As you know, General, I am a Scot and therefore can speak of the English without embarrassing shyness. Now there is a quality in these people that you have always underestimated in Germany. It is the ability to hold on longer than anyone else. The more you hammer an Englishman the more obstinate he becomes."

"Take an example from the Army. In my time I have commanded every type of troops from all over the Empire. The South Africans are dour and dogged; the Canadians have extraordinary dash, the Australians behave as though they do not care a hoot who is in front of them and that usually takes them through, but the ordinary English line regiment—and particularly a cockney regiment—is the one I would choose for a tight place. The cockney and his counterpart in the county regiments, grumbles the whole time so long as everything is going right, but if things go wrong, if there's no food or water, if the weather conditions are as bad as they can be, if there's little or no hope of support—in other words, if everything is just as hopeless as it can be, then Tommy comes out at his very best. That quality is not a military one, as you Continental soldiers understand it, it is national. Deep down in the English, with their confessed ignorance of political matters, their almost absurd obsession with sport—who's won the Cup-tie or the winner of the three-thirty—lies that quality of which I have spoken and, when it is applied to military matters, I truly believe it renders them unbeatable. I am a Scotsman and, in a sense, almost as much a foreigner as you are yourself, but I tell you, General, that I believe that England is quite truly invincible."

"I wonder," remarked von Wallenfels, thinking of Munich, perhaps . . . or Spain . . . or some even more sinister situations in the future.

"I am glad of it," replied Sir Hector McAllister.

At that moment the searchlights lit up the bay, their vivid pencils of light clearly revealing the hull and conning tower of the U-boat. "It is time to go," said the German general.

A whaler from the Harpy ground on the shelving beach and McAllister. Meredith and the armed posse of Calithness police escorted their Nazi prisoners to the water's edge. Nazi Colonel Weimar, Erich Stutz, Lieutenant Ernst Rotz and the various sailors who had been at the farm were being sent back to Germany with von Wallenfels.

The man called Siegfried Klotter was being held to stand trial in England for the murder of the Grafen Adelheid von Reinhold.

At the last moment there came an unpleasant interlude. Weimar, alias Levinsky, had already stepped into the whaler. Rotz had been carried aboard, his broken knee-cap making it impossible for him to walk, and von Wallenfels stood watching with an expressionless face when Stutz broke into voluble, if inaccurate, English. He was begging not to be sent back to Germany. He appealed to McAllister and Meredith, cringing and slobbering in cowardly fashion.

"I will to the block be sent!" Stutz screamed as he fell upon his knees before McAllister. "Gracious sir, will you not pity show? I am informed with secrets of the Nazi party and will the same to you reveal."

McAllister's eyes met those of Prince Max and asked a question. Von Wallenfels made a slight gesture of the head towards the boat, and Sir Hector ordered. "Put him aboard!"

Then it was von Wallenfels' turn to step into the boat. He hesitated a moment as though about to address himself to McAllister, apparently changed his mind and bowed stiffly. McAllister and Meredith bowed in return. Ten minutes later, the U-boat was moving out of the bay on the surface. On either side of her went the lean, dark shapes of the destroyers which had instructions to escort her as far as German waters.

On the shore, Meredith and McAllister stood side by side watching the departure of the under-cover invaders. They spoke little, their thoughts concentrated on that towering figure which now stood upon the tiny bridge of the U-boat which was moving out to sea.

So Prince Max had failed! Failure as far as he was concerned meant the end. The Nazis had spun the completed web of his destiny. The wheel had turned full circle. . . . As he leaned on the rail his eyes staring ahead, they saw nothing of the dark sea nor noted the fairy phosphorescence of the bow wave for they were staring not towards the future but deep into the past.

"Wotan's child. Wotan's weal," that is how the old saying had it. Strange, how vividly he recalled that shrunken little figure in its rusty black, how real Nurse Anna seemed standing there between him and his sister's bed and crying a warning upon him. "I tell you, Max, that child, who is born to your sister, is a child of Wotan and of Fate." Her very words, scorned at the time, recalled so vividly now. "In his little hands he carries the destiny of the House of Wallenfels and if you do him harm he, in his day, will break you and yours." It had been the truth. . . . Wotan's child bore the Wedge. . . . Incredible but true. After all these years Elizabeth's child, Ulrich's child, had broken him.

Once more he recalled words spoken by his old nurse: "What they have done to you, so will you do them, and Wallenfels will be naught but a name in a history book."

(To be concluded.)

Berlin State Opera Fired in British Air Raid

Legal Insanity
In Law Course

(By United Press)

IOWA CITY, Ia.—The University of Iowa law college is pioneering in a new phase of legal study—psychiatric jurisprudence, the study of mental diseases from both medical and legal points of view.

The study involves the first-hand analysis of mental patients interned in the university psychopathic hospital. The course is taught by Dr. Andrew H. Woods, head of the hospital, and Prof. Rollin Perkins of the law college.

For years, according to the instructors, lawyers and physicians have differed over the problem of mental disease.

Doctors assertedly have ridiculed the legal tests for insanity, insisting that the courts are unable to determine by the accepted legal tests whether a person is sane enough to will property or make contracts.

Physicians, on the other hand, never have realized the practical problem involved. Wood and Perkins declare. Some law must apply to settlement of estates and wills to prevent chaos in disposal of an insane person's property.

"Most lawyers have not the vaguest notion of insanity problems because they have never come in contact with cases or else because they have never undertaken independent study," according to Perkins.

The new course, offered in only a few colleges in the country, seeks to correlate the professions of law and medicine, now at odds on the insanity subject.

Bobs Watson, Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney in "Men of Boys Town", at the State Saturday through Monday.

Contrary to the usual rule that sequels never quite reach the form of the original, "Men of Boys Town" is, if anything, better than the first film dealing with the work of making good citizens of unwanted, homeless boys. The picture howls tonight, Sunday and Monday at the State.

Spencer Tracy is again Father Flanagan, beloved head of the town. Mickey Rooney is Whitey, who, in the earlier story, is set straight by the priest. A mystery-comedy, "Footsteps in the Dark", at the State Tuesday and Wednesday, gives Errol Flynn the role of a detective. Brenda Marshall, Ralph Bellamy, Lee Patrick, Alan Hale, Allen Jenkins and Lucile Watson are in the supporting cast.

Edward G. Robinson, Ida Lupino and John Garfield are featured in a new screen version of the famous Jack London story, "The Sea-Wolf", Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the State.

At The Grand
Sunday only the Grand will feature: An adventure thriller, "The Monster and the Girl", with Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas, Joseph Calleia and Onslow Steens; and a comedy-romance, "Free and Easy", featuring Ruth Hussey, Robert Cummings, Judith Anderson (Keane), C. Aubrey Smith, Nigel Bruce and Reginald Owen.

Wednesday's double bill at the Grand will be: "Meet Boston Blackie", with Chester Morris as the Jack Boyle crackman character, Rochelle Hudson, Richard Lane, and Constance Worth; and "Melody for Three" with Jean Hersholt as Dr. Christian, Fay Wray, Walter Woolf King and Toscha Seidel, famous violinist.

The Grand will have the new Gene Autry film, "Back in the Saddle Again", featuring Smiley Burnette, Mary Lee, Edward Norris and Jacqueline Wells, on Friday and Saturday.

TROOPS GET SONGS TO QUICKEN PULSE

Army Also Introduces New Field Stoves To Cook Better Meals

WASHINGTON—The army has introduced new field stoves that cook better meals "than ever before" and a songbook containing 67 "pulse-quickening" songs to stimulate morale.

Three units of the new cooking range can be installed across the front end of a one and a half ton truck and meals can be cooked even on the march.

Here is what the army says comes out of a single unit—enough for 200 breakfasts, 193 dinners, and 150 suppers.

Breakfast—Creamed chipped beef, fried potatoes, toast, coffee.

Dinner—Roast leg of veal, bread-dressing, pan gravy, buttered potatoes, stringless beans, creamed corn, coffee.

Supper—Rice and tomato soup, baked macaroni, tomato sauce, carrots and peas, coffee.

Stove Also Bakes
The stove roasts, fries, boils and bakes.

Units are constructed of an outer sheet of aluminum lined with stainless steel, which helps the KP keep the stove clean.

The fire unit is independent of the body of the stove and can be used in many positions, depending on the type of cooking. When gasoline is not available, a wood grate is provided.

Cooking equipment in each unit consists of a 10-gallon roasting pan of sheet aluminum with a heavy aluminum sheet cover which can be inverted and used as a hot plate, and a 15-gallon heavy aluminum cooking pot, with an eight-gallon double boiler. Specially designed covers prevent splashing while the troops are cooking.

Old Song Favorites
The songbook, prepared on the basis of a poll of representative groups of soldiers, contains such time-old favorites as "Auld Lang Syne", "The Ball Weevil Song", "Casey Jones", "Good Night, Ladies", "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary", "I've Been Working on the Railroad", "Swanee", "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", "Monkeys Have No Tails", "The Old Gray Mare", "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag", "She'll Be Coming 'Round the Mountain", "There's a Long, Long Trail", "Where Do We Go From Here?", "Yankee Doodle", "You're in the Army Now".

"The Star Spangled Banner", of course, heads the list of contents. It is backed up by "Battle Hymn of the Republic", "Marines' Hymn" and "Alma Mater".
The songbook, prepared by the morale division of the adjutant general's office in collaboration with the Library of Congress, has a blue cover, showing in cartoon style, the soldiers of the army from the days of 1776 to the present.

See Court Test for Garbage
YOUNGSTOWN, April 12.—A court test of the city's right to dump garbage without a permit from the county health commissioner is in prospect, officials say, after an angry crowd of Beaver township residents, Sheriff Ralph E. Clarence Duncan, 35, a truck driver, was arrested for dumping garbage at the site, leased by the city after the incinerator broke down.

Proprietors of Six Shantytown Business Places Assessed Fines

RAVENNA, April 12.—Six proprietors of public business places at the shantytown near the Ravenna ordnance plant were convicted yesterday and 17 other proprietors were to stand trial Monday on charges of violating a section of the Portage county health code requiring toilet facilities in public places.

Justice of the Peace Elizabeth Horne Jones of Ravenna townships assessed fines of $25 and costs against four violators, a $10 fine against another and $15 and costs against a sixth violator.

Twenty-three proprietors of bunk houses and eating establishments in the shantytown were served with warrants by sheriff's deputies after County Health Commissioner P. L. Harris ordered affidavits prepared. Three of the six Negro operators fined by Justice Jones entered pleas of not guilty and four pleaded guilty. Dr. Harris and Sanitary Engineer Stanley Markey testified that the defendants failed to provide the toilet facilities after they had been ordered to do so within 15 days by the county health department.

Today's action by the county health department climaxed several months of supervision of the camp, with sanitary engineers making recommendations and advising residents of the camp on health problems.

The action was taken as Gov. John W. Bricker announced that he was directing Industrial Relations Director George A. Strain to take whatever steps were necessary to close public establishments at the camp.

The bituminous coal fields remained unmanned as southern operators quit the eight-state Appalachian conference in a dispute over terms of a new contract which would cover 325,000 workers seeking wage increases.

These operators said they would form a negotiating group of their own and would renew an offer to give miners an 11 per cent increase and continue negotiations with the CIO to adjust all disputes. They refused to give an increase of $1.40 daily and announced they would ask the national mediation board to consider their plea for continuation of a sectional wage differential.
